

BRENNHAM FIELD ARTILLERY.

Dress Parade and Banquet Tuesday Night—Military Affairs More Active.

In time of peace prepare for war is one kind of discretion that is the better part of valor and in which an ounce of prevention is worth several times over a pound of cure. In the great international game of bluff now being played by the world at large and Europe in particular your Uncle Sam has not until recently cut much ice. But there is a suspicious something going on at Washington which indicates that our condition or rather position in this respect is to undergo a conservative if not a radical alteration. While it is not probable that we shall be placed on a war footing it seems morally certain that we are to be better situated in the future for keeping the peace. In fact military operations have not been so active since the last war as at present. Coast defences are being looked after, naval equipments are being improved and military affairs in general are being steadily though quietly strengthened and bettered. There are strong and most suggestive indications that different State military organizations will be called on sooner or later to report for duty if not to see actual service.

Whether or not the spirit of progress that at present actuates the Brenham Field Artillery is to be ascribed to any or all of the causes above set forth does not in any way change the fact that the command is making strenuous efforts at improvements, and what is much more to the point, is succeeding admirably. Possibly the inspiration to redoubled efforts toward improvement comes through those magnificent guns and equipment wrested from the jaws of fierce competition on the tented field at San Antonio during last dog days, when perspiration paralyzed patriotism with less zealous and industrious soldiers. Just at present the company is engaged in engraving as many new names as possible on the roster, provided they are the kind of material out of which soldiers are carved, and none others need apply.

Some forty members of the organization turned out on dress parade Tuesday night for an inspection at the hands of Captain Ben Schmid, who expressed himself much pleased with the result. Following the inspection came a very sumptuous banquet, and as all good soldiers have good appetites this was correspondingly enjoyed.

Hoyt's "A Bunch of Keys."

Hoyt's "A Bunch of Keys" polished up to date will be presented by the Sparks company to patrons of the Grand on Nov. 19th. The piece is well known to the theatre-going public and nearly everyone has either seen or heard of "A Bunch of Keys," the funniest of all comedies, which abounds in the most ridiculous situations, witty sayings and music of the kind that receives four or five encores. The company consists of mostly all new talent this season and headed by Asa Bothner, as Teddy. There is an abundance of bright music and songs, pretty costumes and appropriate stage setting, etc.

An advance notice says of the attraction: "There is hardly a city in America that has a theatre, where there is a theatre going public but what the name of

Chas. H. Hoyt's is almost a household word. This well known author is to a degree the father of farce comedy. The first time his name was brought prominent before the public was when "A Bunch of Keys" was first produced. The "Keys" was a success, and it has made more people laugh than any other production in farce comedy. It's annual visit is always looked forward to with pleasant anticipations in the cities where it has been before, because those who have witnessed the performance know a good long laugh is in store for them. Theatre goers never grow tired of the comedy. "A Bunch of Keys" will this season be produced on a grand scale by Gus Bothner who has engaged an excellent company to produce this excellent comedy. The piece has been polished up to date, and special attention has been given to the specialties which will embrace several novel features, among them the Acme Quartette. The musical numbers will also be a feature. The company is headed by Asa Bothner, who will appear as "Teddy."

THE winter season, with its ballets, oyster suppers, hot Scotch, swell receptions and kindred frivolities, is about to be inaugurated.
